
P R E S S R E L E A S E

Collaborative Librarianship* – Publication of Vol. 3, no. 3 (Fall 2011)

October 14, 2011 - (Denver CO) – The open access journal, Collaborative Librarianship, (eISSN: 1943-7528) has published the 3rd issue of Volume 3. Scholarly articles cover: user participation in resource description, information literacy programs, web apps using HTML5, using Facebook in library course materials, and automating ILL operations. The issue also includes reviews, opinion pieces and news pertaining to collaboration, updated daily or weekly.

Collaborative Librarianship* – Statistics – October 14, 2011–

As of September 30th, 2011, the “views”/downloads total count for all items published to date tops 100,000.

Collaborative Librarianship: Call for Participation* – October 14, 2011 – (Denver CO) –

Consider joining the groundswell of support for library collaboration: volunteer to become a peer reviewer for the scholarly, open access, online journal, Collaborative Librarianship. All related subject/interest areas are welcomed. To register as a peer reviewer, please go to the home page, click “Register” tab, and provide the information requested. (Email address and other information given are strictly confidential and for use only by Collaborative Librarianship.) You can also contact directly the General Editor, Ivan Gaetz: igaetz@regis.edu.

Collaborative Librarianship: Call for Papers* – October 14, 2011 - Are you involved in some interesting, innovative or experimental aspect of library collaboration? Is your library exploring or implementing resources or services that build on, promote, or expand the scope of library collaboration? Are you critically reflecting on the methodology, theory or philosophy of why and how librarians, libraries or library consortia work together? If so, we would like to hear from you! Please consider submitting articles for “peer review” or “From the Field” sections of Collaborative Librarianship. Reader responses to articles and opinion pieces also are welcomed. Submissions can be made directly through the CL website. Issues will be published in March, June, September and December each year, and deadlines for submissions are 4 months in advance of publication.

Collaborative Librarianship* – on Facebook and twitter

Participate in the conversation. Join the over 500 Facebook “fans” of Collaborative Librarianship (<http://www.facebook.com/CollaborativeLibrarianship>), and follow CL on twitter.

CONTACT:

Ivan Gaetz, General Editor, Collaborative Librarianship
Regis University, 3333 Regis Blvd. Mail Code D-20
Denver CO 80221-1099
igaetz@regis.edu

303-458-3556
collaborativelibrarianship.org